George and Ruth Hardie welcome you to their home which is ideally placed for the attractions of Buxton and of the Peak District National Park.

Southmead is a beautifully refurbished luxury Edwardian house which opened for Bed and Breakfast in the Summer of 2008. We are situated in the historic spa town of Buxton and are surrounded by the magnificent Peak District National Park. We are ideally located within walking distance of the town centre and with easy access to the Goyt valley and beyond.

Our elegant Edwardian property overlooks the Cavendish golf course and the hills beyond making for a very comfortable and pleasant environment for your holiday.

Buxton has a wealth of interest in addition to being a lovely country town. There is an excellent shopping centre but many buildings of significant architectural and historical interest. For example, there's the Opera House, the Pavilion Gardens, the Octagon, The Pump Room and the Crescent. The Pavilion Gardens and the river provide a beautiful setting for a gentle stroll. For those who like to walk you may wish to explore the rugged peaks to the north or the gentle hills and dales to the south.

For those of you who are interested in historic properties, Chatsworth House, home of the Dukes of Devonshire and Haddon

Hall, home of the Dukes of Rutland are both within easy reach and only a little further afield is Hardwick Hall. You may recognise these from their featuring in many recent films and TV productions.
